

The Big Sky State

Montana views have clear and open skies,
That are a stunning sight for tired eyes.
These unspoiled hills and streams, they tantalize,
And every snow-capped mountain beautifies
This Big Sky state that's fourth in total size.

This beauty though can be a big disguise
When looked upon through lonely bison eyes,
As Western migrants who did jeopardize
This species that has felt a great demise.

The Glacier National Park sun amplifies
And heats the tree-lined landscape till it dries,
Thus making summer forest fires rise.

With economic growth that's a surprise
Through recent efforts meant to modernize
Their agriculture, and commercialize
The tourist havens they now emphasize,
The people have now come to realize
There's no apparent need to subsidize,
Because creatively they did devise
A way for everyone to reach their prize.

© Bill Amirault – 2007